Experience

Undergraduate Researcher, MIT Computational Psycholinguistics Laboratory

Jan 2024—present

Working with Prof. Roger Levy on the evaluation and improvement of multilingual LLMs' understanding of grammar.

- Running controlled morphosyntactic evaluations on multilingual LLMs, focusing on low-resource languages and morphosyntactic phenomena absent in English
 - Using distributed alignment search to identify model regions responsible for linguistic knowledge
 - Finetuning the identified regions with low-rank adaptation

Projects

Descry OCR (github.com/dariakryvosheieva/descry-ocr | PyTorch, Flask)

Sep 2023—Aug 2024

A text recognition engine for low-resource writing systems. Uses CRAFT to detect words on an image and CRNN to recognize individual words.

Tone.me (github.com/tone-me/tone-me | Hugging Face, Next.js)

Oct—Dec 2023

A web app that helps learners of Mandarin Chinese improve their pronunciation of tones. Uses Wav2Vec2 to classify audio recordings of Chinese syllables by tone. Team project for the MIT AIM Labs Fall 2023 program.
